CONNECTIVITY

RESTORING WILDLIFE WHERE WE LIVE WORK AND PLAY

Come along and hear about what a connectivity study is and what it could help us to achieve in our area.

Landcare research scientist and wildlife ecologist John Innes and ecological restoration expert Bruce Clarkson from the University of Waikato will present on the importance of connected landscapes and habitat diversity.

Imagine if we could encourage wildlife to travel from Tawharanui out to where we live. Think Zealandia and Wellington!

The presentations will be followed by discussion with landowners and local conservation groups.

Lunch Provided. RSVP and inquiries can be directed to 021 440 252 or email: manager@theforestbridgetrust.co.nz
